

Biography

Akmal Azim Ahmad Alwi graduated from the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. Upon completion of his housemanship training, he continued his basic surgical training in the UK for about 3 years where he obtained his MRCS diploma from the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh. His career in Plastic and Reconstructive surgery then began in 2004 in the northwest of England. He had gained extensive experience in managing plastic and burns patients from working at several different Plastic and Burns centers there up until 2011.

He returned to Malaysia in late 2011 when he was offered a post as a clinical lecturer at the International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM) in Kuantan. He continued his training in plastic surgery and obtained his master's degree from USM in 2015. He had also worked at HKL as a specialist in 2015. Besides teaching undergraduates and postgraduates at the university, he also regularly performs minor and major reconstructive surgery at the IIUM Medical Centre and Hospital Tengku Ampuan Afzan (HTTA). His interests include hand surgery, breast reconstruction, lower limb trauma and microsurgery.
